NOTICE

TO MY FRIENDS:

I never thought that I would ever be placed in a position that would necessitate what I am now writing and as you must know it is very difficult to do. My wife's tragically unexpected death has left all of us in a terrible state, but with the help of God all problems have a solution.

At first I thought that I would leave Appomattox and work in a hospital where I could have more time with the children, but I am needed here, which is the reason I came here over a year ago. However, from now on, I will have to be a mother and father to my children and this cannot be done without your cooperation. My children will need me as much as you need me and I need you.

If you will limit your night calls to emergencies only, I believe that I will be able to spend enough time with the children so that I can stay in country practice. In that way I can help with the school work, play with them, tuck them in at night; and do the many other things that will have to be done.

I will be back in the office Monday morning, since it will take until then to get things arranged here at home. My sincere gratitude is extended to all of you for your kindness, sympathy and prayers.

Dr. Boyce.

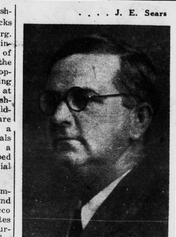
E. Sears Company Annouces Open House at New Building Here

The new J. E. Sears & Co. building in Appomattox is located at the intersection of Main and Court Streets.

You are invited to attend Open House at the new J. E. Sears & Co. Plant this Friday and Saturday.

. . . . J. E. Sears



In 1931, the Company established a wood yard on Hendricks Avenue, in the City of Lynchburg. This venture quickly expanded into the sale and distribution of building materials. In 1948, the company purchased additional property and built a modern building materials sales center located at 2210 12th Street. This establishment is housed in a modern building consisting of 12,500 square feet of floor space and houses a display room for building materials as well as offices, storage and a small wood working shop equipped to get out small lots of special work.

In the early Thirties, the Company established a sawmill and planing mill on the old Tobacco Factory premises. It still operates these facilities as well as purchase dimension lumber from local sawmills for dressing and sale to Contractors and home owners. These facilities were originally operated by steam power. However, in later years this was discontinued and operated by diesel power and currently all equipment is electrically operated.

In the middle Thirties, the Company erected a Millwork Shop to produce all types of wood work. Over the years business has increased and it became necessary to erect its present new quarters, consisting of 17,600 square feet, and now houses in part one, one of the finest millwork plants in Central Virginia. The same building houses the new offices and display room, which is holding open house on April 26 and 27 for inspection by the public.

The management of J. E. Sears is proud of the progress it has made in the nearly forty years of its existence. It is proud of the facilities it operates from. However, it is most proud of the employees who have worked to build the organization. It is to the employees, regardless as to whether it be on a logging operation, at the sawmill, planing, millwork, office, or in the sales organization, that the Company says: A job well done! Next to the good will of the customers, the firm considers its next greatest asset, its employees.

INSTITUTE OF SOUTHERN CULTURE

The Institute of Southern Culture at Longwood College will sponsor its first lecture series in Farmville this week.

J. E. Sears Co. Forestry Program

Management of J. E. Sears & Co., Inc., realized as far back as 1946 that to continue a thriving lumber operation it would be necessary to make plans to eventually grow its own timber.

Local timber resources were being rapidly depleted, and lumber pulpwood operations were depleting these resources faster than they could possibly be replaced.

It was in 1946 that the Company purchased its first timberland for the expressed purpose of creating through good management reserves of timber for the future.Since that time, it has acquired approximately 2000 acres, which it is properly managing. The Company was awarded the coveted TREE FARM certificate in 1952. All of its lands now are operated as a Tree Farm.

During this period, the Company has planted in excess of 550,000 seedlings on its lands. It has conducted thinning operations to increase the productivity of better quality trees. It has conducted poisoning practices to eradicate useless hardwoods.

All of these operations are done with the idea of not only producing timber for the future, but as well as to contribute to the strength of the economy locally, where so many people have been and are dependent on wood and wood products for their livelihood.

The Company's land and timber program is under the supervision of Mr. L. E. Connor.

TWISTER LIFTS TRUCK

Wallace, S. C.- A tornado hit the truck David A. Petty, of Reidsville, N. C. as he was passing through this town, and lifted the giant rig off the road, clipped it over and set it back down on its wheels. A truck driver following Petty's truck said the vehicle was lifted so high the truck following could have driven under it.

The latest in home power tools for the "do-it-yourself" craftsman is a newly re-designed 1956 model of the radial-arm-type "Power Shop" by DeWalt Inc., Lancaster, Pa. Basically a specialized kind of circular saw, the machine quickly converts for other shop operations such as sanding, routing, shaping, and lathe and dado work. The model incorporates many safety features and a dressed-up appearance to appeal to the women of the family as well as increased horsepower and several mechanical design improvements to keep Dad happy.
